If the Suddenlink remote stops working for some reason, here is what you will need to do. Suddenlink Remote Not Working 1) Check Batteries The first thing that you should be trying if your Suddenlink remote is not working is to check on the batteries. You should be replacing the batteries every once in a while, to make sure that the remote keeps working fine. If it stops working for some reason, and you are unable to figure out the reason, then you should try changing the batteries with a compatible pair on it. That will help you get rid of the problem and your remote will keep working without causing you any issues. 2) Re-program it The second thing that you will need to do is re-program the remote with the receiver and that will help you get rid of the connectivity issue. In order to do that, you will have to press the power button on your HDTV box and then click on the TV button on the remote control. After that, you will need to hold down the “Setup” until the TV button flashes twice. After you see these two flashes, you will have to type in the sync code for the television model that you are using. You will need to contact Suddenlink to get the sync code for the exact model number for your TV. After that, you will have to push the “Power” button and turn the HDTV off. Turn the TV back on now and it will start working without having any issues with it. 3) Reset the TV box There is another thing and there might not be an issue with the remote, but it might be some error or bug on the TV box. To get the problem fixed, you will have to reset the TV box and that will help you fix it properly. Resetting is simple and easy and you will not have to worry about it much. You can follow the instructions that you can find with the Suddenlink support department and that will help you reset it perfectly and you will not have any issues with the remote again. 4) Get it checked Well, if nothing has worked out for you and you are unable to make it work despite making all the efforts. You will eventually have to get it checked with the Suddenlink support and they will be able to diagnose the remote and the TV box properly. That way, they will be able to fix whatever the problem might be with either and help you get rid of the problem.
